M1 Photography

Macro

This is a macro picture of a cactus. It was taken in Scottsdale, Arizona at an eye level point of view. I like how there is some symmetry in this macro.

Point of view

This is a high level point of view picture. It is a bird in mid-flight which is my favorite thing about this picture! Ready to take off.

Rule of Thirds

This is a rule of thirds picture. I like this picture because the model of this picture hits the point of interest on the intersection perfectly.

Line

This is an example of horizontal lines. I like how you can not automatically guess what exactly the picture is, which is, just some blinds!

Rhythm/Pattern

This is an example of pattern. I love the colors in this picture and how balanced the photo looks.

Texture

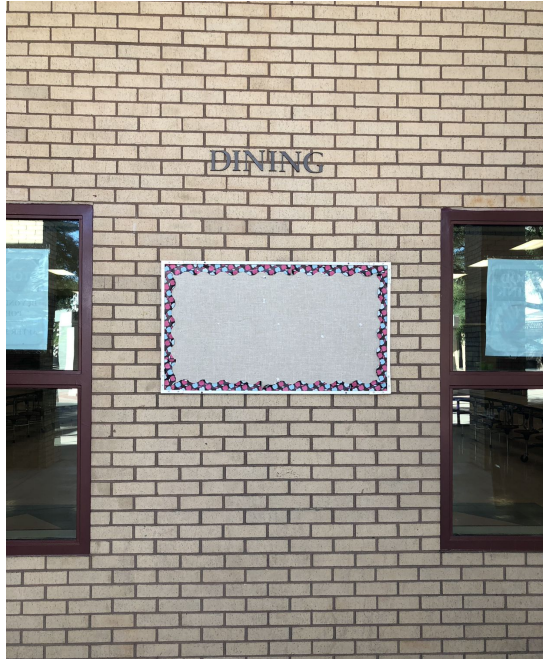

This is an example of texture on a tree. I like the perspective of this photo and how you can kind of see the grass blurred in the background.

Space

This is an example of positive and negative space, with the use of shadows.

Balance

This is an example of conceptual balance. I like that you can find these in places even like the cafeteria!

Framing

This is an example of framing. The model in the photo is surrounded by a frame, which is an aesthetic touch to the photo.

Color

This is an example of the color red that I was assigned. I like how it is very close to where you can see the seeds.

Decades

This is an example of our decades project. My group had the 80's. I really liked how the model in this photo positioned himself, much like those in the 80's.

Movie Poster

This is a photo I used in my movie poster. I like this because it captured the two main character's emotions using the blending technique.

Best of the Best

This is my favorite because of the discoloration in the tree and how much texture you are able to see.
